Paragraph 1 only. [REDACTED]

1. In mid-July the headquarters of the Soviet Far Eastern Army sent approximately 300 German prisoners of war, all jet plane pilots, from Komsomolsk, Siberia, to Mukden and Changchun, from where they were to be assigned to various air bases in Manchuria to pilot jet planes for the Chinese Communists. All these prisoners of war had been held for a long time in Komsomolsk and well indoctrinated by the Soviets.
2. In early August the headquarters of the International Volunteer Air Force was in the Railway Guest House, Mukden. Fu-lu-ta-fu (布鲁达夫), Soviet, was commander-in-chief and LIW Ya-lou, head of the Chinese Communist Air Force (CCAF), was deputy commander.
3. During March work was completed on the reconstruction of Ksuchiapeng (徐家棚) Airfield, Wuch'ang (114-17,30-32) area. In late July this field was handling commercial planes only.
4. During mid-July the Hankow Airfield was expanded to include the former racetrack area adjacent to the field. The work was done under the supervision of Soviet engineers. In late July this field, with underground hangars, had a capacity of 400 (sic) aircraft.
5. On 4 August one PO-2 flew from Tangts'un to T'angshan and returned to Tangts'un.
6. On 5 August CCAF activities were as follows:
 - a. Shanghai training mission: 12 fighters.
 - b. Tsingtao training mission: a number of planes of the 46 Regiment, 16 Air Division.
